MAHS Conference 2006 Dallas, Texas, March 23-25, 2006

Dallas, the City that "Lives Large, Thinks Big" Offers Exciting Museums and Private Collections, and a Full Range of Sessions

MAHS invites abstracts for its 33rd annual conference, to be held March 23-25, 2006 in Dallas, Texas. Hosted by the Dallas Museum of Art and chaired by Roslyn Walker, the conference will be held at the Dallas Museum of Art, the Nasher Sculpture Center and the Crow Collection of Asian Art, and the Fairmont Hotel in the Downtown Arts District; the Meadow Museum of Art at Southern Methodist University; and the Kimbell Art Museum, the Amon Carter Museum, and the Modern Art Museum in Fort Worth.

Participants will attend the famous late-night Thursday at the Nasher Sculpture Center and the Dallas Museum of Art where a reception will be held at the 1717 Restaurant. Friday evening will be spent at the Kimbell Museum of Art in nearby Fort Worth. Special exhibitions, "Lord of Creation: The Origins of Sacred Maya Kingship" and "Gauguin and Impressionism" will be on view at the Dallas Museum of Art and the Kimbell Art Museum, respectively.

Conference attendees will have opportunities to visit private Dallas collections of modern and contemporary art. Downtown, where the Arts District is located, offers buildings designed by such renowned architects as Edward Larrabee Barnes, Renzo Piano and I. M. Pei, among others, all within walking distance of the Dallas Museum of Art. Other museums and art spaces that can be visited include the African American Museum and the Women's Museum in Fair Park, and the Dallas Center for Contemporary Arts.

Nineteen sessions covering the full range of topics in art history and pedagogy will be offered. A "Gauguin and Impressionism" session will complement the exhibition at the Kimbell Art Museum. Other fascinating sessions include: "American Art: Itinerancy, Identity and Place," "Forming Identity in Medieval Art," "Early Texas Art," "Performativity, Passing, and Self-Portraiture," "Religion and Politics in the Arts of Africa and Oceania," "Women as Artists and Patrons in Europe," and "Art History/Appreciation Pedagogy: What's Working – What's Next," among others. A complete list of sessions along with instructions for submitting proposals can be found on pages 2-4 of the newsletter.

Hotel information and a conference registration form are located in the back pages of this issue.

Call For Papers

PROPOSALS ARE DUE ON TUESDAY, JANUARY 31, 2006. They should be typed single-spaced, no longer than 250 words. Please list only your name and institutional affiliation (no titles). Remember to include a c.v., and indicate your MAHS membership status. Session chairs will notify applicants about their decisions by February 15, 2006.

Art History/Appreciation Pedagogy: What's Working – What's Next?

The shift in our discipline paradigms at the end of the last century successfully moved art history and appreciation closer to the heart of the undergraduate core curriculum. Visual literacy is more universally recognized as an essential component of a liberal education, not just for reasons of content it provides for the fully informed and involved member of society. This session invites topics related to current research and practice in the methods and standards of instruction and assessment in art history and appreciation, especially with regard to their expanding roles in the interdisciplinary context of the general education curriculum.

American Art: Itinerancy, Identity, and Place

Although its very name links it to a specific geographical location, American art has always embraced a shifting consciousness – indeed an ever-evolving - sense of place, from the first itinerant artists working throughout the colonies to artist-explorers to the transatlantic exchanges of the late nineteenth – and early twentieth-centuries. This session encourages scholars to submit papers dealing with Colonial to modern American art that explore questions of itinerancy, identity, and place, both at home and abroad, in urban and rural manifestations, within the academy and embracing different traditions. In so doing, we will revisit – and perhaps complicate and change – our understanding of the old question of the “Americanness” of American Art. Questions and abstracts may be sent to

Eighteenth-Century European Art

This session invites submissions from scholars working on any topic in the history of eighteenth-century European art. Papers may be addressed to the fine, decorative, or popular arts, and interdisciplinary topics are strongly encouraged. Possible topics might include: the representation of new forms of sociability and subjectivity in the long eighteenth century; changing perceptions of genre theory; the role of regional academies; the enduring or eroding importance of seventeenth-century artistic models; new understandings of workshop practice and the art market; and revisions to our understanding of the roles of gender and sexuality in eighteenth-century visual culture.

Northern Renaissance and Baroque Art

This session welcomes papers that deal with any aspect of architecture, painting, sculpture or other media produced in Northern Europe from the Fourteenth through the Seventeenth centuries. Especially welcome are papers that address these buildings or objects in ways that highlight the contexts in which the works were produced and/or their original functions.

Italian Renaissance Art: Devotion and Patronage

This session seeks to assemble 1) papers that demonstrate the interrelationship between a specific work of art (or group of works) and a specific theological or devotional text, liturgy, or confraternal activity and 2) papers that address how specific works meet the devotional requirements of known, presumed, or here proposed patrons. Particularly welcome are papers that consider both patronage and innovations in religious practice together as promoting artistic invention. Also welcome are papers that consider this question with respect to parallel examples in Northern and Italian Renaissance art.

Forming Identity in Medieval Art

This session solicits papers that examine the ways in which community identity is articulated in works of medieval art. How did medieval artists and patrons use visual forms to define the qualities and boundaries that they perceived as essential to their particular communities – whether cultural, national, ethnic, religious or other - , and what were their motivations for doing this? How were such efforts received by viewers both within and outside these groups? Conversely, how might imagery have served to distinguish those who stood outside such self-identified communities, and for what reasons? Papers on any aspect of medieval art (C.E. 300-1500), West and East, are welcome.

Early Texas Art

Early Texas Art has enjoyed a collecting boom for several years, with interest in the subject leading to the establishment of the Center for the Advancement of Early Texas Art. The increasing popularity of this art provokes a number of questions, including: Why this interest now? Have significant artists been rediscovered? What brand(s) of modernism took hold in Texas? Should we speak of Lone Star Regionalism or Texas regionalisms? What roles have galleries, patrons and crit-

Gauguin and Transnationalism:

A reevaluation of Gauguin

Was Gauguin an Impressionist, a Post Impressionist, a Symbolist, a male and colonial pig, and or one of the leaders in multicultural identity and more? Did he – or other 20th century artists – become more than hybrid and truly transnational?

Is that possible yet? Submit ideas about Gauguin or others and keep in mind that the Kimbell show is on Gauguin and Impressionism.

Design and Modernism: The American Home

Since the early twentieth century, designers, manufacturers, and design proselytizers have sought to advance the notion of an “ideal” modern American home through the creation and popularization of progressive accoutrements challenging the predominance of traditional styles. This session invites studies emphasizing twentieth century American objects, furniture, or domestic interiors – whether by a single designer or a number of manufacturers or concerns – which were widely promoted and marketed as modern alternatives to revival styles. Papers addressing social and historical contexts, popular culture and consumerism, and relationships between the fine and decorative or design arts are encouraged. Abstracts via email are preferred.

Performativity, Passing, and Self-Portraiture

If the portrait is understood as a way of communicating identity, then the self-portrait is perceived as an act of intense and honest scrutiny of both the physical and psychological selves. However, rather than understanding a self-portrait to be a mere reflection of the self, this panel assumes that a self-portrait is a process of self-invention wherein the subject portrays and performs an identity s/he wants to inhabit. This session seeks to complicate the understanding of self-portraiture by examining the intersection of portraiture with passing. Passing is defined here as a temporary or permanent masquerade in which an individual chooses to experience life as another. The panel seeks to explore the boundaries between what artists know themselves to be, how they want audiences to perceive them, and how they are actually interpreted by audiences.

Likewise, it will examine the manner in which artists have used the passing portrait to subvert strict social classifications, shift identities, or blur the distinction between subject and object. Papers should focus on objects (produced on or after 1900 and created from a variety of media) in which artists appear as themselves, depict themselves as another class, gender, nationality, or race, or in which they do not appear at all. Papers must address memory, similarity and difference, identity, the assumption of alternate personae, and the valuation of artist products among other issues.

Religion and Politics in the Arts of Africa and Oceania

In native societies in Africa and Oceania so-called tradition-based art is rarely made for visual pleasure only. Instead, in those parts of the world art most often has multiple meanings and fulfills a variety of functions. Scholars sometimes distinguish between art that is primarily related to religious beliefs and practices, and art that has a major role to play in the exercise of leadership. However, although it is theoretically possible to separate these two dimensions for analytical purposes, in practice many works of art in non-Western societies are characterized by the convergence of the sacred and the profane. This panel invites speakers to explore the interrelationships between religious and political connotations in the arts of Africa and Oceania.

African Art

African Art/Visual Culture: The State of the Field
The field of African art studies has undergone considerable change over the past two decades. The focus is more inclusive and no longer narrowly defined as sculptural and traditional and is based on a variety of approaches, drawn from different disciplines. The panel invites papers that represent recent scholarship, revised interpretation of existing data, new scholars, and innovative paradigms or methodologies. This panel is meant to highlight the current nature of the field and to reflect those changes that have made the study of African visual culture a dynamic and innovative area of research within the discipline of Art History.

Women as Artists and Patrons in Europe

This session welcomes papers devoted to the study of female patronage and artistry in Europe before 1900. We are interested in innovative studies of women artists as well as papers that consider the role of women in commissioning art works. Papers that consider broad issues of female agency as well as focused studies of specific artists or patrons will all be considered. Please send abstracts and C.V.'s to the Chair.

Presenting Art in the Digital Age

A century ago the advent of slides and the possibility of dual projection altered the way art history is taught. Today we are in a new age of changing technology that will also affect the way we teach art history and even the way we see art. This panel will explore the impact of digital technology in the classroom, museums, publishing, and on the internet. Papers examining the opportunities and challenges of digital technology will be welcome.

Photography

Papers exploring the aesthetic, technical, historical, and social factors in the development and practice of photography are welcome. Topics might concern individual photographers and their work, themes shared by several artists, the relationship between photography and society, the role that photography plays in shaping ideology and informing popular thought, the ways photography has been used to raise political consciousness and promote social reform, the relationship between photography and painting, and photography's complex status as art, and/or changing attitudes towards the medium over the course of the 19th and early 20th centuries. she completed there, the Pastoral Landscapes Series, are being shown in four autumn exhibitions.

Julie Hochstrasser, University of Iowa, is on leave with an ACLS Frederick Burkhardt Residential Fellowship. Her new book, Trade Secrets: Unpacking Commodities in Dutch Still Life, is forthcoming at Yale University Press.

Theresa Leininger-Miller, University of Cincinnati, received the President's Quality Service Award from the university in October, 2005.

Barbara Mooney, University of Iowa, has been awarded a Winterthur Residential Research Fellowship for summer 2006. Her book, Prodigy Houses of Virginia: Architecture and the Native Elite, will be published by the University of Virginia Press.

MAHS News and Announcements

The Allen Memorial Art Museum received a major grant through the “Museums for America Program” from the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS). The AMAM’s proposal was fully funded at $149,687. The award will be used to acquire, install, and implement a new collections management system with a World Wide Web interface. Among the new acquisitions at the museum is Attila Richard Lukacs’s Sharp Skin Portrait XII, 1997.

In May, 2005, to commemorate a $20 million gift from University of Wisconsin-Madison alumni Simona and Jerome A. Chazen the name of the Elvehjem Museum of Art became the Chazen Museum of Art. The gift will fund a major expansion of the museum.

The Frederik Meijer Gardens and Sculpture Park dedicated a new, five-acre expansion of the sculpture park on September 14, 2005. It features two monumental sculptures by Kenneth Snelson and Jonathan Borofsky. This new space represents the largest addition to the sculpture park since its opening in 2002.

The 67,000 square foot Art Building West designed by Steven Holl is scheduled to open in January 2006 at the School of Art and Art History, University of Iowa. The new building will contain four state-of-the-art classrooms for art history, the visual resources collection, the art library, art history faculty offices, a gallery, administrative offices, and studio classrooms. The original 1936 Art Building will be used for the Studio Division. The new building dedication is scheduled for April 21, 2006. A symposium on contemporary architecture is being organized.

The Kimbell Art Museum has announced the acquisition of three works of Maya art: a royal jade belt ornament from the Early Classic period (250-600 A.D.), a codex-style vessel from the Late Classic period (600-900 A.D.), and a vessel with a mythological frieze (also from the Late Classic period).

The University of Michigan Museum of Art has received a $1 million gift from Marvin H. and Mary M. Davidson in anticipation of a $1.5 million Kresge Challenge Grant toward the renovation and expansion of its current home, Alumni Memorial Hall.

The Milwaukee Art Museum has reached the $25 million milestone in its efforts to pay off the debt incurred in the construction of its addition designed by Santiago Calatrava.

The Museum of Art and Archaeology, University of Missouri-Columbia—Columbia, Missouri, has made three recent acquisitions: a Roman sarcophagus fragment from the 2nd or 3rd C. A.D., a 13th C. quatrefoil from a colored-glass window, and Daniel Garber’s Untitled (Summer Landscape), c. 1920s.

The Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art has received significant contributions to its endowment fund from three members of its board. In addition to these gifts, the Museum has recently been awarded four competitive grants for 2006 from the National Endowment for the Arts, National Endowment for the Humanities and Institute of Museum and Library Services totaling over $1.2 million. The museum’s new building, designed by Steven Holl, is set to open in 2007. In the meantime, its Ford Learning Center was formally dedicated on September 15, 2005. This center was made possible by a $4.5 million gift from Ford Motor Company Fund, Dearborn, Michigan.

Alison Stones, University of Pittsburgh, has built the first comprehensive online image collection documenting the exterior and interior architecture, sculpture, and stained glass of Chartres Cathedral. Working with students from the Department of History of Art and Architecture, and in conjunction with the university’s Digital Research Library, Professor Stones has created a resource containing 3,000 photographs and diagrams. The online collection can be searched by keyword and browsed by logical arrangement. All images can be viewed at very high resolution.

The Taft Museum of Art welcomed Thom Shaw as the 2005 Duncanson Artist-in-Residence November 1-14, 2005.

The Toledo Museum of Art has been renewed its accreditation with the American Association of Museums. During its Spring, 2005 visit the committee concluded that the museum “is a model institution in [its] commitment to education, outreach, and community engagement.” In September 2005, it created its first named staff position, the William Hutton Curatorship. Lawrence W. Nichols, whose specialty is European and American painting and sculpture before 1900, has been appointed to the post.

The Wichita Art Museum has launched a new endowment campaign with a challenge grant from the Forest C. Lattner Foundation.

2005 MAHS Graduate Student Award

The MAHS Graduate Student Presentation Award is granted to the best paper presented by a graduate student at the MAHS annual conference. Candidates are nominated by their panel chairs and the winning paper is selected by a committee of MAHS board members. The prize is generally a book in the winner's field of interest in art history.

The paper selected for the award at the 2005 conference in Cincinnati was by Elizabeth A. Perrill, a graduate student at Indiana University, for her paper entitled “Ubuntu and Ubumba: Philosophical Change in the Use of Zulu Ceramic Vessels.” It was presented on the panel “African Art Today” chaired by Tavy Aherne of Indiana University.

Perrill’s paper discussed the changes in usage and meaning of Zulu ceramic beer containers and their relationship to installations created by contemporary South African artist Isaac Khanyile. The paper places both the traditional vessels and the contemporary installations within the context of Zulu ideas about culture, spirituality, and human values. It frames the discussion within the conundrum faced by contemporary African artists concerning their connections to “traditional Africa” and international contemporary art practice. The committee found the paper to be innovative, creative, and convincing, and was impressed with the fact that it was based on independent field research. In nominating this paper, Tavy Aherne praised it for “contribut(ing) to a deeper understanding of Zulu-based philosophies and aesthetics (rather than imposing Western-based interpretations and constructs).”

Editorial Notes

The Cuttler Fund was established by Professor Charles D. Cuttler of the University of Iowa to provide travel support to students presenting papers at the annual MAHS meeting (this year in Milwaukee). The fund is supported by contributions from MAHS members and friends. Please contact Randy Coleman, MAHS Treasurer, at coleman.1@nd.edu if you would like to donate to the Cuttler Fund or receive information for requesting support.

Museums and galleries are invited to send press releases and images (images on disc preferred) to the editor whenever exhibition press packets are ready. Although preference is given to exhibitions open when the newsletter is mailed and received (October 1 for the fall issue; May 1 for the spring listings, all images will be considered for publication so as to acknowledge the ongoing contributions and accomplishments of our member institutions. Images of new acquisitions are also welcome. The sooner these materials arrive, the more possibilities there are for publication. Please include the relevant exhibition or acquisition information on each image. (Consult this newsletter for caption formats.) Send to: MAHS Newsletter, Paula Wisotzki, 1253 W. Flournoy Street, Chicago, IL 60607)

Visit the MAHS website – www.mahsonline.org

The MAHS website now is being updated on a much more regular basis. New features include a list of current and upcoming “Exhibitions in the Midwest” that is updated twice annually, and a positions listing for job openings in the field at the “MAHS Online Career Center.” Also, relive the history of MAHS with the photo gallery archives.

Graduate Student Fellowships, Grants, and News

Linda J. Fleming, M.A. candidate in art history at Oklahoma State University in the School of International Studies has an internship at the Philbrook Museum, Tulsa, Oklahoma. She is working with Jessica Stowell and Yukiko Yokono researching the museum’s Asian collection. In addition, she will accompany her thesis advisor, Marcella Sirhandi on a ten-day lecture/research tour to Japan in November, 2005.

Shawnee Green-Turner won the 2005 Outstanding Graduate Student Award in Art History at the University of Cincinnati. She gave the paper “Fragility and Tenacity: The Complexity of Womanhood in Tamara de Lempicka’s Art, 1925-1933” at the MAHS 2005 meeting.

The Art History Society of the School of Art and Art History, University of Iowa, will hold its annual symposium on March 24-25, 2006, entitled “Elements of Architecture: History, Theory, and Criticism.” Inquiries should be directed to Steven Addy (steven-addy@uiowa.edu). A call for papers will soon be published.

Midwest People/People in the Midwest

Colleges and Universities

The Department of History of Art and Architecture at the University of Pittsburgh announces the appointment of two new assistant professors: Drew Armstrong (Ph.D. Columbia) is an architectural historian specializing in French architecture of the Enlightenment. He also has a professional architecture degree and will be assuming the directorship of the undergraduate Architectural Studies Program. Josh Ellenbogen (Ph.D. Chicago), is a historian of photography and has a particular interest in the relationship of photography to the history of science. He is currently on a Gould postdoctoral fellowship at Princeton. Gao Minglu (Ph.D. Harvard) has also joined the department, as an associate professor of contemporary Chinese art. He has recently curated an exhibition, The Wall: Reshaping Contemporary Chinese Art, which opened in Beijing last summer and continues in Buffalo this fall. In the same department, Fil Hearn will retire in June, 2006. A historian of medieval architecture and architectural theory, he has also served as director of the department's undergraduate Architectural Studies Program for 25 years. His latest book, Ideas that Shaped Buildings (MIT, 2003), is now being translated into Chinese.

Frances Colpitt has joined the art history program at Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, Texas as the first holder of the Deedie Potter Rose Chair of Art History. She will be offering courses and seminars in contemporary art. Also joining the TCU program is Marnin Young, who recently received his Ph.D. from University of California, Berkeley and specializes in European modernism.

Monique Fowler-Paul has been appointed a visiting instructor in the Department of Art History and Archaeology, University of Missouri-Columbia. She is a specialist in modern art and her research concerns artists of the African diaspora in Britain.

Brenda Longfellow (Ph.D. Michigan) has joined the art history faculty of the University of Iowa as assistant professor. At the same institution Andrea Kann is visiting assistant professor for the 2005-2006 academic year.

Kathleen Warner Slane has been appointed Middlebush Professor in the Humanities at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Palli Davis joins Oberlin College's Frank Lloyd Wright Docents as Coordinator. She was the Allen's first Curator of Education in the 1980s and served as a consultant at Fallingwater as the house established an education department of its own.

Susan L. Froelich has been named Director of Development and External Relations at the University of Michigan Museum of Art. She recently worked in the University of Michigan's Office of the Vice President of Development.

William M. Griswold has been appointed the new director and president of the Minneapolis Institute of Arts. Since 2004, Griswold has served as the Acting Director and Chief Curator of the J. Paul Getty Museum. Chairman of the Board of Trustees Alfred Harrison praised Griswold as "a highly skilled arts administrator and scholar who has done a great job at the Getty over the past several years."

Joe Ketner has recently joined the staff of the Milwaukee Art Museum's Chief Curator. Ketner comes to Milwaukee from the Rose Art Museum at Brandeis University, where he has been Director for the past six years.

John Wilson as been appointed director of curatorial affairs and curator of European Art at the Joslyn Art Museum. He was previously working as an independent curator and consultant, and was the Consultative Curator of Painting and Sculpture at the Taft Museum of Art, Cincinnati.

Calls for Submissions

The Minnesota Chapter of the Society of Architectural Historians (MNSAH) invites the submission of articles and books on the subject of Minnesota architectural history to the sixth David Stanley Gebhard Award, which honors the late Minnesota-born SAH president and nationally renowned writer, whose subjects included this state's architectural history. Judging will be by a panel appointed by MNSAH. The winners will be announced and the awards along with an honorarium will be presented at the MNSAH Annual Meeting in March 2006. Submissions must be received no later than November 30, 2005. For additional information and complete rules for the award program, contact Victoria Young at (651) 962-5855.

Aurora, The Journal of the History of Art is seeking submissions for future issues. The journal publishes articles dealing with all time periods, cultures, media, and/or methodologies within the field of art history. Manuscripts to be considered should be sent to: Lillian H. Zirpolo, 255 Glen Road, Woodcliff Lake, New Jersey 07677 and Joanna Gardner-Huggett, Art Department, DePaul University, 1150 W. Fullerton Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60614-2204.

For further information, consult the journal's web site (www.arthistory.rutgers.edu/aurora).

Women's Arts News is seeking front-page, biographical articles about well-known women visual artists, from any time period, art movement, style or medium. Articles should be written for a general audience. As biographical essays, the submissions should contain factual information about the person's life; analysis of art work is not needed. Length is 700 words or fewer. Submission preferred via email at the web site (www.womenstudiocenter.org). For more information call 718-361-5649.

2005 Outstanding Catalogue Exhibition Award

Winner of the Midwest Art History Society Award for Outstanding Exhibition Catalogue — Hero, Hawk, and Open Hand: American Indian Art of the Ancient Midwest and South.

The Midwest Art History Society Board of Directors is pleased to announce the winner of the award for Outstanding Exhibition Catalogue – Hero, Hawk, and Open Hand: American Indian Art of the Ancient Midwest and South, edited by Richard F. Townsend, Chicago Art Institute, 2004.

Many wonderful catalogues were submitted, and only after careful review and deliberation did the Award Committee, Leesa Fanning (chair), Joseph Becherer, and Robin Clark, select Hero, Hawk, and Open Hand.

Selection of the Outstanding Exhibition Catalogue was based on the conception of the exhibition, contributions to contemporary scholarship, and excellence in design.

This represents the inaugural year of the award for Outstanding Exhibition Catalogue. The Call for Nominations for catalogues produced in 2005 will be sent out this November, with a deadline for submissions in February. The winner of the 2005 award will be announced at the annual Midwest Art History Society meeting in March, 2006.
